T. Sussex.

The Queen wishes to make known the 'presompteuos, arrgant, felloniōs, rebelliōs, & trayterōs, deads of Shan Onell', and 'her gratius & mercyful proceding with him'. He did not come to the Council called in 1556 against mac Connell. In 1557 he delayed joining the expedition against James mac Connell, and when he came he left again after two or three days. In 1558 he was reinstated in loyalty by Sir Henry Sidney. On the news of the death of Queen Mary he murdered his brother, Baron of Dungannon, and dispossessed his father, making himself be proclaimed Oneil. He was summoned to Council in 1559, but refused to come without sureties, Sir W. Fitzwyllyams, Sir Henry Radclif, Sir George Stanley, Marshall of the Army, and Chief Justice Plunket. On coming to Dundalk he swore peace. In 1560 he again refused obedience, and now maintains a traitor, Archbishop of Armagh, and other proclaimed traitors. He is therefore proclaimed traitor.

MARCH.—[BY THOS. SMITH.] The offer and order giuen forth by Sir Thomas Smyth Knight, and Thomas Smyth his sonne, vnto suche as be willing to accompanye the sayde Thomas Smyth the sonne, in his voyage for the inhabiting some partes of the Northe of Irelande.

[London: 1571.]

Sine nota.

1 f. Gothic letter. Tho. Smith, Jun.[1]

Thomas and place

The Queen has granted to Sir Thos. Smith, Knt. and Thomas his son all lands her Majesty's by inheritance in the country called the Ards and adjacent countrys in Earldom of Ulster, if they can possess them. To those who will help them to possess the land they offer as follows:—

To each foot soldier, one plowland of 120 Irish acres of arable land, for which Sir Thos. and Thos. S. must pay the Queen 2*d.* Irish for an Irish acre (24 foot to the pole). The soldier is to pay to Sir Thos., Thos., and their heirs 1*d.* sterling for every English acre (16½ foot to the pole). The first payment to be made 4 years hence, viz. 1576.

To each horseman, 2 plowlands (240 acres Irish) which is at the least 500 acres and more English, paying for every English acre as the footman doth.

Each footman and horseman, after the arable land is divided, shall have also pasture, meadow, wood and such like necessary.

The charge to be paid by a footman, if he be furnished with sufficient armour for a pike, halberd or caliver, with a convenient livery cloak of red colour or carnation with black facing, is £10 for his victualling and transportation for one whole year, after which time there is hope to find enough provision in the country.

The charge of a horseman well horsed and armed for a light horseman with a staff and a case of dags is £20 for victual of him and his horse for 1 year. His cloak of the same colour as the footman's, in the fashion of the Dutch riding cloaks now used.

To avoid ills arising (the Flixe, &c.) from lying uncovered on the ground, on payment of 10*s.* by a footman or 20*s.* by a horseman they shall be lodged under canvas and upon beds until houses are found.

Those who cannot adventure themselves may pay for a substitute and have the land apportioned, for a footman paying £16.13*s.* 4*d.* and in proportion to this rate if they desire more land. Any doubting may see the Letters Patent at the sign of the Sunne, in Pauls Churchyard. He may pay his money there to Thomas Smyth, Junior, who adventures in person, or the Treasurer, who will also take payment in kind according as they are needed.

beene her 2) their Seale

The Earl of Desmond and his confederates have stated that a new conquest of Ireland and extirpation of the Irish is in contemplation. This is untrue, and the Queen will pardon all concerned except the ringleaders excepted by the Lord Deputy. All subjects are to withdraw from these traitors. Those who come in within 10 days will be pardoned. Rebels will be followed up with fire and sword. The Queen will not allow any subjects to be oppressed or hindered as long as they are obedient. The offence of rebellion, and submission to a foreign and strange potentate being greater than her Deputy may pardon, the Queen has caused this Proclamation to pass the Great Seal, and it has thus the legal force of a Pardon under Great Seal. But any persons may have particular Pardons under Great Seal of Ireland.

Prince- nance 2) prac- her

Recites her benefits to Hugh O'Neile, son of Matthew Ferdarrocke O'Neale, bastard son of Con O'Neale, whom she has made an Earl with large territories, and 1000 marks sterling per annum. He has hanged one of Shane O'Neale's sons and imprisoned two others. He has induced O'Donell, chief of Tireconnell, to join in rebellion with McGwire, of Fermanagh, O'Rourke, and the McMahounes of Monaghan to invade the Pale. He is declared a traitor and ally of Spain. Pardon offered to all who come in, especially to the followers of Tirlogh Lenogh who were seduced to leave him.

London: Dep. of C. Barker: 1599.

2 ff. Gothic letter.

euer assured 2) to Crowne

Recites the trouble taken by the Queen to bring Ireland to obedience by peaceable means. The present rebellion is caused by three sorts, some who have been hardly treated by her ministers, some fearing the power of adverse factions and having no defence against other rebels, and some incited by seminary priests. The Queen does not wish any conquest or extermination of rebels, the name Conquest being absurd. To show her good will, a just and merciful minister has been appointed to Ireland. [Earl of Essex.]

Certain noblemen complaining of the government of Ireland have been heard by the King in person, and select commissioners have been sent there to make inquiry. This has encouraged them to speak disrespectfully of the King's Deputy. Though not finally deciding every question raised, the King justifies him in every respect, and will punish any contempt of him. Inferior ministers found in blame will be corrected and punished.

Certain titulary Popish Archbishops, &c., Jesuits, Friars, Seminary priests, &c., have stirred up opposition to the Parliament about to be summoned in Ireland, with a view to obtaining a connivance if not a toleration of religion, and great sums of money have been contributed to uphold them. Procl. 3 Jas. I [No. 182, q.v.] is cited. No toleration will ever be yielded. All the said titulary Archbishops, &c., are to leave Ireland before the last of September and not return. No one is to harbour them. If they return they are to be arrested and punished, unless they conform themselves and repair to church duly and orderly.

Henry Falkland.

It is the duty of the Clerk of the Market to survey abuses in weights and measures, and in all trades using them, and the quality of food, cattle, and manufactures. He must punish forestallers, engrossers, and regrators; he and his deputies must pass through every county once a year to mark weights, &c. Hooped measures (which can be altered at pleasure) to be suppressed. The general regulations resemble those of the English proclamations. The table of fees is reckoned in Irish money, 2*d.* English to 4*d.* Irish.

Parliament was summoned on royal letters to meet on 3 Nov. next. But the provisions of Poyning's Act, 10 Hen. VII, and of 3 & 4 Philip and Mary were not fulfilled. A certificate under Great Seal of Ireland of the Acts to be passed, with the reasons and motives, must be sent by the Lord Deputy and Council. This must be returned as altered and approved under Great Seal of England, with the King's licence to summon a Parliament. Otherwise Parliament is void. The meeting of Parliament is therefore deferred till these preparations can be made and a day fixed.

The King finds that he has many petitioners for Irish estates on the grounds of concealments, intrusions, defective titles, &c., of present holders. He wishes to offer his Irish subjects the same opportunities of making good their titles as his English ones, and has appointed a Commission of Grace. All persons having bad titles are to repair to England before 1 September next, when they may compound for a reasonable sum of money, or new increase of rent. The commission titles will be confirmed by Parliament, when the King's title will be limited to sixty years. No further suits for forfeited lands to be presented till after 1 September.

Many persons, soldiers and others, pillage without orders; others cut grass and green corn and sell it in the markets, which is likely to cause much famine next year; others rob persons coming in to market. The provost martial is to go out every day with a party and arrest and punish all offenders. He is in fault for permitting this evil. The proclamation 10 June, No. 369, q.v., does not authorize pillage, and any soldier found pillaging must expect instant execution by martial law. dee- pe are Recites their extreme respect for the Nuncio (Archbp. of Firmo), who is being misled by a few individuals for their private ends. The Confederate Catholics are not to be drawn from their obedience in consequence. The late declaration against the cessation was only signed by some of the bishops and others after vigorous opposition. It is published to-day by order of the Nuncio, and Bishops of Clogher, Rosse, and Cork. In concluding the cessation we provided for the free exercise of our religion and function, and the possessions of the clergy, as well as some other propositions purely temporal sent us from the Nuncio by Patrick Bryan and Geffrey Barron. The government of the kingdom must not be cast down and trod upon or devolve to a spiritual tribunal, which would be the case if we may not (without licence first had) either conclude cessation, regulate armies, nominate officers, appoint commissioners, or dispose of places of trust in the civil list. We appeal to the Pope, and warn Confederate Catholics that nothing done by the Nuncio will lessen the obedience due by them on oath to us.

The Nuncio has by his declaration introduced a civil war among the confederates, and now by this Synod intends to force an approbation of his proceedings by terror of such severities as he has already exercised on Fathers George Dillon and Valentine Browne. The place is in a seat of war, and the populace are ill-affected. There is fear of pillage. A synod should not meet in time of war. The General Assembly is convened for 4 September next. Owen Mac Arte O'Neill, late Generall of Ulster, and Emer, L. Bishop of Clogher, have entered into rebellion and hostility to the King and the Confederate Catholiques. Any of their supporters who come in before 25 October next will be pardoned except the said Colonell Owen Mac Arte O'Neill, Emer, L. Bishop of Clogher, and Edmond Reilly, Priest Vicar Generall to the L. Archbishop of Dublin, Thirlagh Duffe mac Donnogh ô Brien, Iohn ô Kennedy of Dunally, Arte alias Arthur Cavanagh of Ballynloghan, Captain Donnogh ô Connor mac Hugh, Captain Richard Bourke mac David of Partry, Alderman Dominicke Fanning of Lymericke. In any peace made the gentlemen of Ulster will receive the same consideration as the Confederate Catholics, provided they lay down arms at once. Those who do not will be treated as rebels after 25 October next.

Ormonde.

Dublin was abandoned to the Parliament in hope of an agreement between them and the King. This has failed. The Protestant army in Munster is loyal. The King accepts its declaration, and has sent Ormonde to fulfil his office. Promises to settle the Protestant religion as in the best reformed churches, defend King's prerogatives, maintain the privileges of Parliament. Will suppress the Independents, maintain trade with England. Offers an indemnity for all past offences. Promises equal consideration to all persons resorting to the King's service, whatever their past may have been.

12 MAY. — BY THE COMMISSIONERS . . . IRELAND. A Declaration touching the Poor. [Begins] Vpon serious consideration had of the great . . .

Dublin: 12 May 1653.

Found only in MS.

There are great multitudes of vagrant poor, caused by the devastation of the rebellion, who have acquired habits of licentiousness and idleness. Some feed on carrion and weeds, some starve on the highways, poor children deserted or exposed by their parents are fed on by ravenous wolves and beasts and birds of prey. All means of stopping this must be tried. Impotent people are to be assisted and able-bodied vagrants sent to houses of correction till they are broken from their idle course of life, and willing to betake themselves to some honest calling. At present the number is too large, and the poverty of the country too great to effectually put the law in force. Subscriptions are to be taken from all persons, civil and military, for the relief of poor children, paid quarterly in advance for one year, to be disbursed in every precinct by overseers of the poor appointed by the commissioners. This to be published in print.

Owing to the invasions of the French on the Palatinate, near 3,000 men, women, and children have taken refuge in Dublin. Thomas, Earl of Wharton [Lord Lieut.] referred the case to Narcissus, Archbp. of Armagh, Lord Almoner of Ireland, for report, who advised that a General Brief by Letters Patent for a collection should be granted. Accordingly a house-to-house and general collection is to be made and returned through the chancellors of the diocese to the commissioners for settlement.

[Act of suspension of the Queen Regent's regiment.]

Edinburgh: 21 October 1559.

Found only in MS.

The nobility, barons, and burgesses convened find the rule of the Queen Regent a public danger. At St. Johnston in May she assembled an army against the town because it professed the true worship of God. In June she attacked the convention at St. Andrews, and quartered garrisons there; she has interfered with elections, brought in foreigners to enslave the country, and coined base money. A stranger has been put in high office, and the Great Seal sent out of the country. New forms of pardon have been introduced, and the foreign soldiers quartered on the community. No access to the Queen or redress has been granted. We therefore suspend the commission granted her by the King and Queen till the next parliament. This to be proclaimed.

Justifying themselves. They are accused as traitors because they maintain the true religion. The Queen by proclamation, 25 Aug. 1561, No. 91, q.v., inhibited any alteration of it. The laws against popery were not enforced, and those attempting to enforce them were persecuted. The actions of the government have all been against religion. The Queen is surrounded by foreign and evil advisers. She has made and proclaimed a King over us, wasted the patrimony of the crown, and of the kirk, raised divisions among the subjects, and perverted justice. They wish only for the welfare of the realm, whatever measures may be forced on them.

James, Earl of Bothwell, laid violent hands on the Queen on 24 April, and took her to Dunbar Castle, and forced her into an unhonest marriage null from the beginning. He is said to have been the principal contriver of Darnley's death. His pretended divorce in two days when the Queen was in his hands confirms this. He is now raising arms to slay the son as he slew the father. All subjects to be ready on three hours' warning to march to the rescue of the Queen. Any who will not do this are to leave Edinburgh within four hours, on pain, &c.

liegis, aucht 2) no- 3) No- Maij,

In consequence of the rebellion against James in favour (as is falsely pretended) of his mother, the Regent is forced to declare the whole matter to the people. James, sometime Earl of Bothwell his manifesto of 12 April 1567 is false. He was the chief murderer of Darnley. After this, his unlawful divorce, and more unlawful marriage, the nobles had to provide for the young king's safety, and to separate Bothwell from the Queen. Bothwell refused the single combat he had offered and fled. The Queen was put in surety as she refused to leave him, and when the truth of the murder was revealed resigned the crown, whereon James, Earl of Murray, was made regent till the king reached 17. The Coronation and appointment of Regent have been approved in open Parliament. Parliament has agreed that anything suffered by the Queen on 15 June last, or at Lochlevin, or generally since the murder of Darnley, 10 February 1566[-7], has been caused by herself. The nobles and supporters of the Queen's party have no just cause of complaint. She thought the shedding of Scots' blood a pleasant spectacle. No person is to aid her or her supporters in any way on pain of treason.

2 ff. Gothic letter.

Re- dience 2) his v-

Recites growing contempt of royal authority, especially of letters of horning. Cites Ordinance of Lords of Session, ordering officers on horning to pass at once to the Sheriff to make an inventory, giving him a copy of the letters of horning which has been neglected. The Justice Clerk and his deputies are to make a roll of all persons put to the horn since the coronation. The Clerk of register to report all rebels given in at the 'Chekker complis' (Exchequer accounts); the treasurer to make a roll of all escheats and remissions in eight days. All persons with letters of horning to return copies with execution within a month to the treasurer, that a roll of rebels may be printed, and affixed on the palace, the market cross, and tolbooth doors. No rebels on the list to exercise office or to be able to claim benefit of law. Letters of horning not executed within a month are invalid and must be renewed. If any persons denounced rebels appear in public they are to be seized and put in ward till they are tried (if criminals) or released (if for a civil suit). In future, on letters of horning, the treasurer is to send orders to the sheriff of the shire or to an officer-at-arms, at his discretion, to seize the goods of the rebel, the complainant to pay the expenses, to be repaid from the debtor's goods. If the officer is resisted the sheriff (or if he will not or may not), some nobleman, &c., well affected to the King, is to aid him and see that the letters are executed. These to be published at all market crosses, &c.

The actions of the lords against the Queen, under pretence of freeing her from Bothwell, were really directed against her. There is no intention of altering religion. The conveners desire union, and a peaceable discussion of all matters in dispute. If this is not granted they must resort to war. No one is to assist their enemies, nor alter the form of the true Christian religion appointed by law.

this quha 2) and thairfoir 3) Cromartie

Declares the character of the murderers of the late King and late Regent. The Archbishop of St. Andrews is chief among them. It is probable that these same murderers will slay the young king. Their evil nature is shown by their attempts to encourage war on England. By order of Secret Council no one is to publish any proclamations that do not run in the King's name, but to arrest any who try to publish them. None to assist rebels. Pardon for past offences except to those who have assisted the English rebels.

Cites Abstinence 30 July last, No. 276, q.v. The terms were not observed. The late Regent, the Earl of Mar, was disappointed, and counterfeit coin struck in the Castle. The truce was prolonged for two months more on 8 October to 6 December. No move was made for peace. The truce was prolonged to 1 January on the instance of the English ambassador, who desired that the printing Irnis [for coining] and prisoners, especially the Master of Forbes, might be handed over to him. The Castle folk refused to come into any agreement on 31 Dec. on a pretext of provisioning the Castle. The points at variance are discussed in full, and the Regent and Secret Council desire to give public certification thereof that none may aid the Castle.

George, sometime Erle of Huntlie, and Francis, sumtime Erl of Arroll, have returned to Scotland without licence. The ministry are not to think the King careless of the interests of religion. The privileges granted to preachers show the contrary. The Earls will never be pardoned till they are reconciled to the Kirk. No one to aid the Earls in any way on pain of treason. All persons between 16 and 60 to hold them in readiness with 40 days' provisions, to march on 6 days' warning.

Arms 221 of selfe 2) from Yeeres.
In consequence of a petition presented to Parliament anent the badness of Scottish leather, Iohn, Lord Erskine has imported the following Englishmen to teach the trade: George Harason, Nicolas Richardson, Cuthbert Hutcheson, Edward Craiges, Cuthbert Hutcheson younger, Ihon Robeson, Thomas Dobieson, Thomas Dobieson younger, Robert Harfard, and George Lambert of Durham, Ihon Heroun, Reynold Milbourn, Harie Twedaill, Thomas Wallace, George Ogill of Hexem, Philip Shilton of Chester of the Street, and George Wilsoun of Morpet. Instructions are given in full for the preparation of the hides, &c. Two lime-pots to be kept 7 × 4 × 5 feet. Hides to lie in fresh water three days, then for five or six weeks in the lime-pots, being handled three days a week. They are then to be washed and then put in a baitte with pigeon-dung or hen-pen for eight days. They are then put in the bark-pots, of which there must be five or six, two of them 7 × 5 × 5 feet for lopping, the others 3 × 3 × 3 and covered. They are to be shifted every three days. Hides for over leather to be tanned twenty-four weeks in the bark-pot, sole-leather twenty-eight weeks. They are then to be air-dried under cover. These strangers will be sent to various parts of the kingdom. All tanners to whom they are sent to give them full charge of the work, and allow them to put their hides in with the others. They are to have full liberty to trade. Any tanners giving up trade to be brought before Privy Council. No unsealed leather may be sold after 1 Nov. 1621. 'Ordeined to bee published in print.' Per Actum D. Secreti Consilii.

[Commission anent Teinds.]
Wansted: 11 July 1626.
Edinburgh: T. Finlason: [1626].
2 ff. Roman letter.
Ireland: Our 2) them such

The King is willing to compound with any one holding erections, &c., of lands, teinds, patrimonies or benefices of Church lands which should belong to the Crown or to public uses, who will resign them freely. A Commission under Great Seal has been issued to Sir George Hay, John Earl of Mar, John Earl of Montrose, the Earl of Menteith, Winton, and Annerdale; and in their default, Earls of Linlithgow, Wigton, Viscount Aire, or L. Yesteir. For the Clergy: Archbishops of St. Androes and Glasgow, Bishops of Rosse, Dunkeld, Aberdeyne, Dumblane; and in default, Mourrey, Galloway, Brechin, and Cathnes. For the Gentry: Sir William Alexander, Sir Archibald Napier, Sir George Elphingston, Sir James Skene, Sir George Auchinlek, and Sir Robert Gordoun; and in default, Sir Alexander Gordoun of Cluny, Sir John Maxwell of Nether Pollocke, Sir John Charterhouse of Armsfield, and Sir James Bailie of Lochend. For the Burgesses: Provost of Edinburgh, John Hay, Town Clerk, Provost of St. Androes, or John Arnot, Commissers' Clerk there, Duncane Paterson of Striviling, Gabriel Cunningham of Glasgow, John Corsane of Dumfries; and in default, Provost of Dondie, John Cowan of Striviling, Duncane Forbes, Provost of Inverness, and Robert Alexander of Anstruther, or any twelve of them including three of each four estates, to treat as to the compensation for surrender of these pretended rights, and for their surrender, and to apply the free rents for building of churches and schools, the overplus coming to the crown. The King will ratify the bargains made by his Commission. All subjects pretending any right to teinds, &c., to meet the Commission before 1 January next, or no composition will be made with them. The Commission is during pleasure.

21 JULY.—[BY THE PRIVY COUNCIL.] A second proclamation concerning the revocacion. [Begins] Charles . . . Forsamikle as althog by a letter of the dait . . .
Holyrood House: 21 July 1626.
Found only in MS.

Cites royal letter of 18 Jan. [proclamation 9 Feb., No. 1438, q.v.]. Further explanations are given. Aims at freeing the kirks from their bondage by heritable offices and teinds, and increasing the royal revenue. This will be done only by course of law. The revocation made will only be enforced against erections of lands, teinds and patronages justly belonging to the church or crown or dispositions of lands and benefices mortified ad pios usos or regalities and heritable offices changed since 1540 from their ancient tenure. Any who have acquired such rights lawfully and will surrender them before 1 January next may have a composition. The teinds revoked will be sold to the heritors of the lands (after the kirk and poor are provided for). In the next parliament the patrimony of the crown will be made inalienable, thus limiting the practice of revocations. These to be proclaimed.

On the petition of the nobility and gentry of Scotland a Commission is appointed to sit on 1 March next, and to continue till 1 August or longer during pleasure, to treat for erections and temporalities of benefices unlawfully acquired from the Crown, and to secure them to their present possessors on reasonable terms. Sixty-eight persons nominated. Full power to any representative, twelve to treat concerning the composition necessary, or the satisfaction to be paid on resignation of pretended rights. The Commissioners may break up large parishes, make provision for churches, ministers, stipends, and schools. They may call the heritors before them and give them new securities of their teynds. All settlements by the Commissioners to be satisfied next Parliament. These to be proclaimed at market crosses and parish kirks. Legal action will be taken against all who do not compound. All legal obligations incurred before the last revocation [6 July 1626] will be respected. The mansion houses, &c., of Abbacies, &c., fewed to Lords of Erection will be continued subject to a small head rent. Actions on the late revocation to be discontinued. Commissioners to consider the formation of a patrimony for the crown. James Prymrose and James Law to be clerks of the Commission.

Commission has been granted to Robert, E. of Nithisdale, Alexander, L. of Spynie, and James Sinclair of Murkill, to raise regiments in aid of the King of Denmark, and all Egyptians, strong and sturdie beggars, idle and masterless men wanting trades and competent means, and all fugitives from Col. McKye should be apprehended and enlisted. Many of these persons have combined to resist enlistment in companies armed with hagbuttes, pistols, and other armour. Sheriffs, &c., are to seize on all such persons named, and deliver them to the captains, officers, &c., who shall requisition them. As many of these vagabonds are trying to pass into Ireland, no passengers are to be taken there except they have passes and are known persons of good quality.

The submissions being prorogate till 31 Dec. 1629, and the royal annuity beginning in 1628, a valuation of each person's lands and constant rent in stock and teynd must be made. The commissioners are to appoint particular persons for every parish, as they think fit, to value the true teynds of the lands there, and to cite parties with particular interests. Lords of erections and others are to produce to our Advocate their laces and rights and securities containing warrandice at the days appointed. Commissioners are to take special trial of the just rentals of the few fearmes and few mealles, and the charges on them, as they are to proceed at once to the consideration of ministers' stipends, schools, hospitals, and other pious uses. These to be proclaimed. Per actum D. Commissionis predict.

The commissioners have held some meetings for appointing sub-commissioners and consider the presbyteries the fittest bodies to choose fit valuers. The moderators and brethren of each presbytery to choose the fittest persons to act as valuers one for each kirk, and if less than nine kirks in the presbytery, to make up the number to nine. Objections to the choice of any sub-commissioner to be made before the presbytery at the nomination. The time and place of the nomination are to be announced by the reader (or the minister if there is no reader) on a Sunday before noon when the proclamations of bandes of marriage are commonly made, at least fifteen days before the diet for election. These to be proclaimed with the days on which the results of the elections are to be declared (from 9 Jan. for Edinburgh to 18 Feb. for Orkney and Yetland), on pain of horning. These to be proclaimed. Per actum D. Commissionis predict.

A form of submission was drawn up by the Advocate to be signed by all buyers and sellers of teinds in the kingdom. Though this has been largely subscribed some have been omitted. Inheritors, tacksmen, and rentallers of teynds set by the archbishops, &c., are comprised in the order. Days are appointed (3–21 Feb.) for the sheriffs to attend in each shire and receive submissions. These days are to be declared in every church by the reader or minister at least eight days before the meeting. Sheriffs to attend the general commission on 27 February, bringing with them the submissions, or the reasons for refusal.

Arms 221 the censure 2) Commissio

Recites proclamation No. 1679, q.v., discharging Service Book, Book of Canons, and High Commission, Five Articles, subjecting all men ecclesiastical and civil to Parliament, General Assembly, and other competent judicatory. The King has also renewed the Confession of Faith of 1580, called a General Assembly at Glasgow 21st inst., and a Parliament in May 1639. All this has not satisfied the subjects, who guard the castle of Edinburgh, stop the import of ammunition, and make convocations which issue orders through the country. Many disorders have taken place in the elections for the General Assembly, overlooked in the hope of peace. But the meeting is seditious, armed in contempt of the proclamation, Edinburgh 16th inst., No. 1690, q.v., has refused our assessors the liberty of voting, and to hear the bishops. The Assembly is therefore dissolved. All members to leave Glasgow within twenty-four hours. The declaration of His Majesty's commissioner to hold good.

Recites summoning of General Assembly at Glasgow, discharge of Service Book, Canons, High Commission, and Five Articles, No. 1684, q.v., by proclamation, and commanded the Confession of Faith and Band of 1580 to be renewed. This has not brought about peace. Edinburgh Castle is watched. Conventions are summoned, and send orders through the country. The commissioners of the Assembly are many of them under censure of this Church or that of Ireland. Refers to instructions sent to electors, to the private instructions of Aug. 27, of which eight sections are summarized. Contrary to the proclamation at Edinburgh 16 Nov., No. 1690, q.v., the Assembly was attended by armed men. Cites verbally the promise in the proclamation, No. 1691, q.v., repeated in the Assembly as a declaration subscribed by the Commissioner [Hamilton]. Finding the Assembly increasingly disobedient it was discharged the next day, Nov. 29, by proclamation at Glasgow on pain of treason. They still continue to meet. Their acts have no force. No one is to justify or support them. Nothing coming from this pretended Assembly is to be signed. This to be published. Per Regem.

Though his subjects have rebelled, capturing royal castles and crown, yet he will not infringe the ancient laws or force any innovations in religion on the kingdom. All his proclamations to that effect will be maintained. A free pardon is offered to all who submit within eight days. A Parliament will be held when peace is restored, and an act of oblivion will be passed. Those who do not submit within eight days are proclaimed traitors and their lands are forfeited. Their tenants and debtors are not to pay them, but to pay half the amount to the Crown. Their rents will be reduced by one-third at least. Similar promises to superior lords, to boroughs and cities. Forfeited estates will be devoted to the payment of the Crown's debts.

Being on his road to Berwick, with intent to satisfy the people of Scotland in Parliament when the present disorder is quieted, and a Scottish invasion of England being feared, the King reiterates his intention of peace. If, however, an armed force comes within ten miles of the borders, it will be taken as an invasion, and orders will be given for its destruction.

Charles R. Desires to make known his dispositions more fully. Feels his responsibility to God, and must therefore preserve his right and authority. He would not have them judges of another kingdom, but appeals to their sense of justice, their natural affection for him, the Covenant, the good laws of the late Parliament, and their promises of help. He has been charged with (1) being popishly affected, (2) being the cause of the Irish bloodshed, (3) intending to bring in foreign forces. These charges are untrue.

Thomas, Earle of Haddington, David L. Elcho, Arthur Areskine of Cotiscraig, Sir Iohn Waushop of Nidrie, Iohn Binny and Thomas Paterson, Merchants, Burgesses of Edinburgh, James Lentron, Burgess of St. Andrews, Mr. Andrew Ramsey, Minister at Edinburgh, and Mr. John Montcreiff, Minister at Kingorne, presented the Petition. As the enemies of the peace are meeting they met, and heard the letters from the King and the Declaration of Parliament. They wish to preserve the peace between England and Scotland, and to prevent any intermeddling between the King and the English Parliament in their differences. There is already a Commission appointed to deal with such matters with a Commission of Parliament. Do unto others as you will be done to yourselves.

Act of the Secret Councell of Scotland. Edinburgh 1 June.

The Lords will have a special care not to infringe the confidence between the two kingdoms. The Petitioners need not trouble them in future on this matter. Signed: Archibald Prymrois.

The Earl of Lindsay has shown the King the Declaration of the Lords and Commons of England to the kingdom of Scotland, 7 Nov., inviting assistance to make war on him. He describes the actions of the Parliament against him. It is not a true Parliament, only 80 of 500 Commons are left and 15 of 100 Peers. Refers to a Declaration concerning the Commissions granted to papists. This letter is to be communicated and published in Scotland. If the advice given by Privy Council in their Act of 22 April last (see P.C. Reg. vii. 249) had been followed in England these troubles would not have arisen. The King has only taken arms for the safety of his person, his kingdom, and the Protestant religion.

The Estates of Scotland have entered into a Covenant with the kingdom of England for defence and reformation of religion, the defence of the rights and privileges of Parliament, and the defence of the King. This will exasperate all papists and malignants, hence the kingdom must be kept in a state of security. All men between 60 and 16 are to provide themselves with forty days' provisions and arms, &c.; horsemen to have pistols, broadswords, and steel caps, or jacks, secrets, lances, and steel bonnets at the least; footmen to have musket or pike and sword, or halberts, Loquhaber axes, Jeddart staves, and swords; on pain of punishment as public enemies and confiscation. Per Actum Dominorum Conventionis.

Cites Acts of Council, December 1620, April 1621, 29 November 1621, concerning the price of coals in the water of Forth. The coalmasters were summoned to appear before the Council. Andrew Dick, Robert Bruce of Kennet, Alexander Crief of Pittincreiff, John Earl of Weems, John Lord Sinclar, David Beatson of Cardon, David Boswell of Balmonto, and James Dishington of Elphinston appeared in person; and Sir William Dick, Lord Elphinston, John Earl of Mar, and John Hamilton of Kinglassie were represented. The prices of the coal were settled on the basis of seven years' price. Coalmasters are to prefer natives to strangers in selling their coal, and not to postpone them on pretence of contracts with strangers. 'Charles by the Grace of God of Great Brittaine, France and Ireland King Defendor of the Faith, etc. To our Lovites Lion King of Armes, Herauldes, pursevts, Messingers and Officers at Armes, our Sheriffes in that part coniunctly and severally, Greeting. Whereas by the seaventeenth Act in the first Session of our last parliamt in that our Kingdome, Wee wth advise of our Estates there did statute and ordaine that every three yeares once at least, a parliamt should bee kept wthin that our K.dome, in such a convenient place & time as Wee wth advice foresaid should at ye close of every parliamt determine and appoint; Like as by the last Act of our said late parliamt it was appointed that the next Triennial parliamt should meet and convene at Edinburgh vppon the first Tuesday of June last 1644. Wch date, in regard of the great distempers both of this and that Kingdome, Wee could not keepe at yt time, neither in our owne person, nor by our Commissioner. But now amidst the many and weighty affaires Wee have in hand, not laying aside the care of that our auncient and native Kingdome, Wee have thought good, not to frustrate any longer the expectacōn and desires that our good Subjects there may haue of such a parliamt, and that ye rather, least any of them should bee abused in thinking that Wee doe, or ever intend to acknowledge for lawfull the Meeting begunne at Edinburgh the said first Tuesday of June last, & continued since under the name of a parliament; wch howsoever the appointing of it to convene by Us at that day and place, might haue beene a sufficient warrt to them for their first meeting; yet to continue the same in absence of Us, or some one at least to represent our Royall person amongst them and by themselves; without our concurring authority to make pretended Laws & Ordinances, is such a presumption as Wee are resolved never to endure. For these therefore and other Causes Us moueing, but cheifely out of the tender affection Wee carrie to that our Native K.dome (the present distracted Estate whereof Wee much pity, & thinke it cannot better bee remedied then by the wisedome & authoritie of a lawfull and free parliamt by whose Councells and advice Wee will bee governed in wt may conduce to the perfect setlinge of Peace and tranquillity there) Wee will and require you and every one of you coniunctly & severally to passe to the Markett Crosse of our Towne of [Glasgow] and there by open reading of this our proclamation, Summon & warne all and sundry Dukes, Marquesses, Earles, Viscountes and Lords wthin that our Kingdome to give their personall appearance wthin the of our said Towne of [Glasgow] the [20th] day of [October] next; where & when Wee intend to hold our High Court of parliament by our selfe; or a Commissioner to bee appointed by vs for that effect; As also that yee make intimation and warning to the Sheriffs and freeholders of every shire wthin that our K.dome and to the Magistrates of all our Burroughes Royall wthin the same having place and voyce in parliament, to elect and choose Commissioners to bee sent from their severall shires and Burroughs respective, that may giue yir opinion and Counsell in such things as shall be proposed in the said parliamt, and concurre with our Nobility aforesd to make such Actes and Statutes as may conduce most to the peace and wellfare of that K.dome & shall bee approved and ratified by Us, or our Commissioner aforesaid in our name. Like as wee will and command you to intimate publiquely to all our Lieges of wtsoevr quality and condition, yt may haue any suites, complaintes or greivances to bee represented to Us in parliament that they resort for that effect to our sd Towne of [Glasgow] at ye day aforesd and haue their recourse noe where else wthin that our K.dome (especially to ye pretended parliament kept by the Rebells there at Edinburgh) as they would not haue us to esteeme of them as persons disaffected to our Royall person & government. Furthermore it is our pleasure that this being done, you passe imediately to the Market-Crosses of all ye Head-Burroughes within every severall shire of that our Kingdome (or at least to so many of them as are presently under our obedience) & publish this our proclamacōn; Provided alwaies that ye publicacōn thereof at ye Market Crosse of our sd Towne of [Glasgow] allanerly shall be a sufficient intimacōn to all our Lieges to repaire thither; and yt such of our Nobilitie and Commissioners of Shires and Burroughs, as shall compeare and attend upon us, or our Commissioner at ye day and place appointed hereby, shall have power, wth the consent and approbation of Us, or our Commissioner foresd, to make Lawes and Actes of parliament that shall bind all our Subjects of that Kingdome in ye same manner that any preceding Actes of parliament, either in our time or our predecessours, have done. And that you report this duely execute and indorsed day and place above written, as you and every one of you will answer uppon your perills, where anent these presents shall bee a sufficient warrant Given under our Royall hand and signet at . . .'

The first article of the King is unsatisfactory, all must take the Covenant as all must take the oath of allegiance. The second merely tolerates Presbyterianism for three years. The third omits Erastianism and other dangerous errors. They will maintain monarchical government in the King and his posterity according to the Covenant, knowing the calamities of a change. They exhort all to endeavour a real reformation and to avoid enemies. The power of the sectaries is growing in England. These have disobeyed the orders of Parliament to disband and are now in arms. Many also are ready to support the malignants, who are quite as dangerous.

Lord Amont and the Earl of Aboyn have appealed from the Lords of Council and Session to the King and Parliament (5 Feb. 1674). This being unusual, the Lords asked the advocates on oath whether they had advised these appeals. Instead of answering the advocates appealed to the King. Their statement was unreasonable and likely to cause jealousy against the Lords of Session. Quotes statutes of James II and James V. By royal letter (19 May) the Lords of Session were confirmed, and an opportunity offered to the advocates to withdraw these appeals on pain of disbarring. On 4 July, on their refusal, forty more advocates left the house. None of these advocates are to be within twelve miles of Edinburgh till they give satisfaction. The advocates who have remained are to be encouraged. Those who do not apply to make satisfaction before 28 January next will never be readmitted.

In view of the disloyalty of the western shires, which led them to rebellion in 1666, and to secret conventicles after his indulgence to them, finally persuading themselves that it was unlawful to take the Oath of Allegiance, the Commissioners of Excise and Justices of Peace in the shires were convened, and reported that they could not redress these disorders. The King by royal letter, 11 Dec. 1677, commanded the Privy Council to reduce the country by force of arms, and to take bonds for obedience to the laws and the security of their regular ministers. As bonds for good behaviour are always called for on reasonable suspicion, all who refuse to take the bond, No. 2427, q.v., will be called on to enact in the books of Secret Council, that they and theirs shall keep the peace, not attend conventicles, not harbour rebels, and keep their regular ministers harmless, on pain of double their yearly rent, within six days after summons. In accordance with Act 15, Sess. 1, Parl. 2, a proclamation 23 Dec. 1679, No. 2479 a, q.v., was issued: when bear was sold 15 stone of new or 14 of old (troas weight) for 6 pounds Scots, the best ale should be 12*d.* Scots per pint, for 8 pounds 20*d.* Scots, for 10 pounds 2*s.* Scots, with the addition of the excise. The brewers of Edinburgh and the neighbourhood have petitioned for liberty. The price of the weigh of barley (15 stone troas weight) is 10 merks and of rough bear 9 merks for the crop of 1679. This price is fixed on and no one is to buy at less for malting. Those who sign a bond to buy at this rate may brew single ale at 20*d.* a pint plus the excise, and double ale at 3*s.*, until 10 September next. Maltsters to buy at the rates fixed and to charge 10*s.* Scots a weigh of bear. No vintners in Edinburgh, Cannongate, Abbey, Caldtown, Craig-end, Yard-heads, Newhaven, Pleasants, and St. Ninians Row to brew ale. Coopers to mark their work. A committee of ten brewers in the town and ten in the shire to enforce these orders. Tapsters to have 4*d.* Scots for drawing each pint. Commissioners appointed for the shires to meet 29 March (N. of Aberdene 15 April) to call brewers and maltsters before them to subscribe the bond (proclamation 23 Dec.). Arms 232 Faith; said Let-

Cites the long connexion with Camphire as the staple port of the Seventeen United Provinces, broken only by the transfer of the staple to Dort in 1672, which has proved destructive to trade. By letters patent the Conservator of Scottish privileges has been authorized to treat with the Prince of Orange and the town, and articles of agreement drawn up by them were approved in 2 March 1676, whereon a proclamation, No. 2410, q.v., was issued re-establishing the staple there. Much of the staple trade is however transferred to Roterdam and other places. No staple goods or commodities are to be exported from Scotland to any other place in the Netherlands but Camphire under pains expressed in the Acts of Parliament and of conventions of boroughs. 22 JULY.—[BY THE PRIVY COUNCIL.] A Proclamation For discovering and apprehending some Rebels lately in Arms in the West, and their Resetters.

Edinburgh: 22 July 1684.

Edinburgh: Heir of A. A.: 1684.

1 f. Roman letter. Will. Paterson.

Arms 228 De- be up-

For many years armed rebels have gone up and down Cliddisdale, and of late, in June last, 200 of them have marched through several shires, threatening the orthodox clergy and murdering soldiers. They are certainly harboured by the inhabitants of these shires. The sheriffs are to apprehend these rebels before 15 August next or other measures will be taken. These to be proclaimed. To be read in all paroch kirks, south of Forth, on Sabbath after divine service.

Undertaking, ned Meeting 2) Scotland assembled retir-

Prince of Orange's speech, St. James's, Monday 7 Jan., asking advice of Scots nobles, &c. The Scots nobles retired to Whitehall, elected D. of Hamilton, chairman, and agreed upon a draft declaration to be brought up next day.

Tuesday, 8th inst. The draft was considered and amended as to convening the estates of Scotland. The Earl of Arran proposed that the King be recalled, but the meeting and his father, the D. of Hamilton, dissented.

Wednesday, 9th inst. Sir Patrick Hume asked for a seconder of the Earl of Arran, Lord Cardross supported Sir Patrick, but as no seconder appeared the D. of Hamilton said there was no need for the meeting to give its sense on the Earl of Arran's motion, and the Earl of Sutherland agreeing the address was put and carried unanimously.

f. 2. Address. Desires the Prince to assume the administration of affairs in Scotland till a general meeting of the States is held, which he is asked to summon at Edinburgh 14 March next (dated Whitehall, 10 Jan. 1689), signed by 30 lords and 80 gentlemen and presented by the D. of Hamilton.

14 January. The Prince's reply assenting.

The Earl of Crafurd and the Earl of Lothian with others desired leave to subscribe the address.

Vindicates the King's good intentions in granting liberty of conscience. William is a usurper. His charges of imposture as to the Prince of Wales have failed. Appeals to the Scottish people not to join in encroachments on the royal power. All subjects to hold themselves ready to march. Burgh magistrates at Michaelmas last and sheriffs at Lammas last to continue in office. Offers to confirm the Protestant religion and liberty as it has been in Scotland any time since 1660 in a free Parliament. Pardons all rebellion, &c., except those who voted for the Prince of Orange in the Convention at Edenborough 14 March, and those who came over from Holland with the Prince of Orange. Crown revenues to be duly paid, and ministers to pray for the King and royal family. These to be proclaimed.

THE ROYAL ARMS
AS ON PRINTED PROCLAMATIONS

NOTE

The first form in which the Royal Arms appear on printed proclamations is that represented in Figs. 1–3 — a shield bearing France and England quarterly, surmounted by a single arched crown showing two fleurs-de-lis, four strawberry leaves, and three crosses patée, supported by two kneeling angels. In the proclamation of 1505 this block is accompanied by two Tudor emblems, the crowned portcullis (for de Beaufort) and a crowned double rose, distinguished by bearing in its heart the sacred symbols. Several other forms of this coat of arms with differing crowns are known to have been used by Pynson, but no copy of any print by Berthelet containing it is known except that from which this reproduction was made.

Four forms of the arms used by Elizabeth appear on proclamations. The first (No. 4) is noticeable for the arrangement of its supporters—the Welsh dragon taking the position of honour as against the English lion. It also introduces the Garter badge and motto, a feature which appears in almost all subsequent coats. Fig. 6 is the first of a long series of very fine woodcuts. The shield is within a Garter and surmounted by a royal helmet, on which is the crest of England, namely, a crown, altered to its present form, with a crowned lion statant guardant, the supporters being the lion and the dragon. The motto Dieu et mon Droit is also introduced.

With the union of the crowns of England and Scotland under James I a further modification took place. The Tudor coat took no cognizance of Ireland, though Henry VIII and his successors had become kings of that country. In James's coat the Tudor coat was placed in the first and fourth chief quarters; the lion rampant of Scotland within a double tressure flory-counter-flory, i.e. of fleurs-de-lis alternately facing inwards and outwards, in the second; and the Irish harp in the third quarter. The lion and unicorn appear as supporters for the first time in 1609.

From the armorial point of view no further change is made until the Commonwealth, but the varieties of unofficial blocks which appear during the years 1641–9 are not only interesting in themselves, but give us information as to the provenance of unsigned books and pamphlets. Thus Nos. 24 and 30 are known to have been in use in the travelling press of the royal printers, and we can fix the place of printing of any dated print containing them; others of known origin were used by secret presses.

The well-known double shield of the Commonwealth, which first appears in May, 1649, shows the St. George's Cross for England and the Harp for Ireland. An ordinance of April, 1654 (No. 2111 S.), orders the arms of Scotland to be borne in the Commonwealth arms, but they do not appear on any proclamation till the Protectorate of 1658. The coat then adopted is a very remarkable one. St. George's Cross for England is placed in the first and fourth quarters, St. Andrew's Cross for Scotland in the second, and the Harp for Ireland in the third, surmounted by a royal helmet and the crest of England; supporters, a crowned lion and a dragon; motto, Pax Quæritur Bello. Cromwell's personal arms, a lion rampant, are borne on an escutcheon of pretence. On the Restoration the Stuart arms were again used, the only peculiarity in this series being an accidental reversal of the lion on the helmet in No. 92.

On the arrival of William, Prince of Orange, a coat of his arms appears during the Interregnum. It consists of two coats impaled—the dexter being that of the Prince of Orange, the sinister that of his wife. The Orange coat shows quarterly Nassau, Dietz, Vianden, Catsenelboge; on the escutcheon of pretence on the centre Chalon, Orange, and Geneva; Nevers on that above; Buren on that below; surmounted by the open coronet of an English prince, supported by the lion and unicorn, and motto Ie maintiendray, above the whole being the legend Prot. Religion and Liberty. After their coronation William and Mary used the Stuart coat, with that of Nassau on an escutcheon of pretence. No change was made on the death of Mary, but in 1701 the family motto of William, Ie maintiendray, was substituted for Dieu et mon Droit in the royal arms, to be at once discarded on the accession of Anne. In 1704, however, a change was made in the motto, Semper eadem being adopted.

Another change in the Royal Arms of England took place in 1707 on the union of Scotland and England. Henceforward England and Scotland impaled were borne in the first and fourth quarters, the fleurs-de-lis of France in the second, and the harp of Ireland in the third. The motto remained Semper eadem.

The arms on Irish proclamations have always been the same as those on English publications of the same date. However, during the reign of Queen Anne a number of flags were added to the arms. On Nos. 209, 210, 212 these flags show St. George's Cross and the Irish form of the Union Jack, but Nos. 213 and 214 show either a St. Patrick's or a St. Andrew's Cross.

Scottish arms on proclamations are of a more interesting character. The earliest we have date from 1598. The arms show on a shield the Scottish lion within a double tressure flory, crowned with double arched crown with four fleurs-de-lis and four crosses patée. The earlier in date has the motto In my defence, God me defend, James VI's modification of the motto of the Stuarts, and a border of thistles, sceptres, and links of the collar of St. Andrew. It is interesting that the border is not flory-counter-flory, i.e. that all the lilies point outwards, contrary to heraldic rule. The same anomaly occurs in the arms cut for Robert Young in 1639.

After the Union of Crowns in 1603 occurs the sole case in which a Scottish-printed proclamation has English arms in the first quarter. It was evidently used during the time when James still hoped to bring about a legislative Union. The fine example cut for Finlaison in 1620 shows a shield with Scotland first and fourth, England second, and Ireland third, enclosed within a conventionalized collar of St. Andrew, links, rose, thistle, harp, and fleurs-de-lis, within the Garter, through the loop of which hangs the badge of St. Andrew; the whole surmounted by the imperial crown. The arms used by Bryson in 1641 and by Sanders in 1662 were not official and lack the collar of St. Andrew. The latter has the Scottish crest, and is the first Scottish coat in our series having supporters, the unicorn being in the place of honour. The blocks of arms used in Scotland deteriorate in quality greatly after the Restoration, till they become almost unintelligible. After the Revolution the lion of Nassau is borne in pretence on the Scottish arms until the year 1708, when the Union arms were officially adopted, all particular Scottish differences being abolished.

With regard to the woodcut of Charles I and his son (No. 37A), it is worth noting that it contributes materially to settling the question as to the identity of the Forlorn Hope medal, as to which some discussion has existed.
